How a part of Virginia is formed to extend apparently into the State of Pennsylvania, on the south side shore of the Onic river called the Pan-handle in Pennsylvania, on the south side shore of the Ohio river called the Pan-handle in common parlance, is often asked. The history of the colony of Pennsylvania, according to a writer in the Pittsburg Dispatch, says that a dispute arose at an early day in the settlement of the country, between William Penn, the proprietor of Pennsylvania, and Lord Baltimore, the tounder of Maryland, as to the southern boundary of Pennsylvania. Penn's patent from the King axed it at the end of the 38th degree of north latitude. This line was found to include the city of Baltimore and the present site of the city of Washington. This land could not be maintained, as a part of it was conveyed by patent to the Maryland colony. The discrepancy, occurred from want of geographical knowledge by the Royal Secretaries in making out the different patents. A controversy between these two colonies now arose, which was maintained with great spirit for many years, and was finally settled by agreeing to adopt a segment of a circle drawn at a distance of twelve miles, from New Castle, Delaware, beginning at the point where this line touches the Delaware and continuing until it cuts the 40 degrees and 44 minutes north latitude, and from that point westtouches the Delaware and continuing until it cuts the 40 degrees and 44 minutes north latitude, and from that point westward on that parallel, being 15 miles south of Philadelphia, and two surveyors, Thomas Mason and Jeremish Dickson, were appointed in 1763 to run the line. The names of those surveyors have become world-renowned, as the line they run marked the division between the free and slave States. Pennicialmed that his land extended 5 degrees, $47 miles westward. This point fell 40 miles short of reaching the Oxforives, thus the "Pan-handle," containing four counties, including the city of Wheeling, failed to be a part of Pennsylvania, to which it properly belongs. vania, to which it properly belongs. Mr. Dickinson suffered intensely, notwithstanding he had the best surgical aid. Everything was done that science could surgest and thing was done that science could surgest, and as the last remedy the knife used, and yet he died in great angulah on the third as. This is a fearful warning to those who are ruptured. RUPTURE---HOW CURED.

IR. GEORGE E. EAKINGS, OF PHILADELPHIA, WRITES THE FOLLOWING INTERESTING PAR-TICULARS:

TICULARS:

To the Editor of the New York Sun:

Six—For several years I was afflicted with rupture and suffered from the use of trusses. Casually noticing in your paper a recommendation of Dr. Sherman of your city, and about the same time meeting Mr. J. W. Ayres, of Camden, N. J., who informed that he had been a vietim to rupture and was cured by Dr. Sherman's treatment I felt animated and went straightway to New York, consuited Dr. Sherman, and had him adapt his remedies to my case. It was to me a happy occurrence, and I shall over feel grateful to you and Mr. Ayres for having directed my attention to Dr. Sherman, as well as to him for the safe and comfortable manner in which he treated my case. My mind was greatly oppressed, and my fusure was shadowed, as I was trying various trusses for help with no, other result than voxation and injury. But now being sound again, and realizing its felicity, I feel it my imperative duty to add my testimony in favor of Dr. Sherman's remedies, and to recommend the ruptured to go to him with the fullest confidence of being buadelted.
